In Search Of Truth

Our lives at school reveal more than just learning, it is a journey in which we are constantly searching for answers to the unknown. This may sound like an episode from the X-files but, as you can see it is only a normal day as a Scona student. This search begins as we enter the doors of the school and discover the importance of our education but, it doesn't stop there. This search is found all over the school through its clubs, sports teams, activities and people. Whether it be producing a yearbook, raising money for a charity, playing on the basketball team or being part of the pep rally each student has their own way of searching for the truth. The truth being a championship, an award winning project, good marks or to just be involved. In other words, a students quest to find the truth is really their own way of making Scona a great place to be by continuing the tradition of excellence and producing a friendly atmosphere. Our learning at Scona is just the beginning. After we finish high school we will carry on to other things but our search for truth continues as we decide on universities or career choices. This may all be in the future but, there is always a truth that we don't have to search for and that is "Through these hall walk champions".

THE TRUTH IS JUST BEGINNING

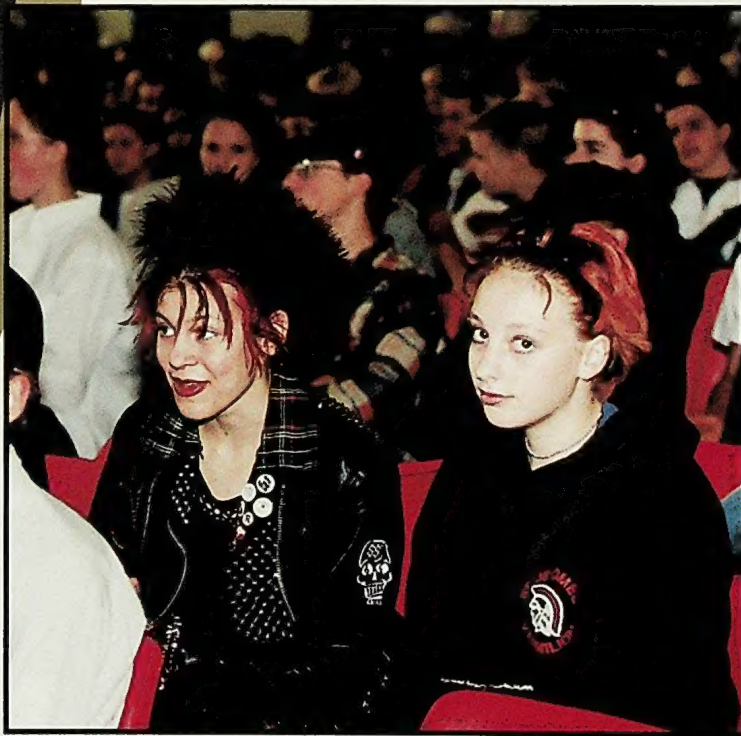

Reality check! Just because we were at the top of the pile in grade 9 does not mean anything now. The truth is everyone has to learn the ropes again once they enter high school. You get lost and bumped around (a lot), but it won't last forever.

We all came into grade 10 with our heads full of myths and legends surrounding high school. ie. Do we get beat up for walking on the crest? Do the room numbers at Scona make sense? Just how cool is yearbook? Our goal in all this is to sort through all the rumors and find the truth. So far we've learned that walking on the crest is wrong, yearbook is cool and that yes, there is no for the numbering system regarding classrooms, there are just numbers randomly put on doors. We have also discovered that high school is a lot like junior high except with more people, longer classes (45 minutes longer) and it starts earlier. On the more positive side there are more people, more things to get involved in and more school spirit (oodles here at Scona).

We've come to Scona to make new friends and be prepared for life as adults. Our pride and school spirit keep us coming back each and every day. Despite how lost and overwhelmed we started out, the truth is, some day, we will be the ones with better lockers, looking at the grade tens thinking "we were never that small!?"

Mike Metcalf, Gareth Eeson and Matt Doig rest during the coss country meet.

Ronia Eurchuk and Leah Gies wonder if this is really what High School is all about at the Gr. 10 assembly.

IN SEARCH OF POWER

Finally the worst year in high school is over, grade 10. After going through and surviving numerous initiations and wandering hopelessly through the green tiled hallways to find a class room that does not seem to be, we can now enjoy being in the middle of the heap. Grade 11 would have to be the best year at Scona. The inferiority of grade 10 is over and the pressures of grade 12 are still a year away. We've also learned the ropes. We know who's class you can skip, who's you cannot and what teachers will let you get away with not always doing your home work. Yes, it is time to have fun, hang out with your friends and make some new ones.

Along with the promotion into the intermediate year certain duties and responsibilities must be taken into consideration. Next year it will be us who will run the school (Oh yes! Unrestrained power). We must get involved and get other people involved in Scona or else the elder race of teachers will take over (ugh...ugly picture). We must also make sure the grade tens don't walk on the crest. But in the meantime we must not forget that it is up to us grade 11'ers to have lots of fun, harass a few teachers.

CLOSER TO THE TRUTH

Brayton Farmer has become possessed by the googly eyed fairy.

The final year of public school has finally come. Can't you just feel the superiority as you walk through the halls. You say to yourself: "I'm the big cheese of Scona this year. I'm part of the elite that grade tens fear and grade elevens envy". Then you realize "Oh my God, I have to get some direction. Get a job, go to post-secondary and even be responsible". You realize that maybe high school wasn't as bad as you thought it was. You have it good right now; even if this year you actually HAVE to work hard. You've got everything figured out.

As much as we all love Scona, we are all ready to move on to the next level. This is our last year to enjoy free schooling. From the three years we've spent at Scona we have learned how to study, party and of course how to handle the stress of the "real world". Now the only thing I would like to know before I graduate is: Where is room 108 anyway?

WELCOME TO THE TRUTH

We call our third week of school Welcome Week, but what does that mean? Not that you need an excuse to play musical chair, eat hot dogs, learn about Scona's wide range of clubs, go to a dance and play Head-On-Bat, but the truth is there's more to Welcome Week than that.

First of all, Welcome Week is a tradition and here at Scona we are big on tradition. Secondly, Student Union wants everyone to get that wonderful Scona Spirit flowing right from the start of the year. Welcome Week was also good on a personal level for all students who took part. They got to meet some new people, make new friends or maybe just let loose with some old friends (or for the lucky ones, a bit of both). Everyone seemed to have more pent-up energy, especially because they hadn't been outside much due to the rain. This meant they could twirl a little faster in the Head-On-Bat contest and add some new moves to their dance routine at the Welcome week dance.

In addition to all the activities that were put on especially for Welcome Week, students got a chance to find out about activities that last the whole year. On Clubs day the small gym was filled with tables for the debate team, L.I.P, Scona Pride, the Math, Travel, Chess and Computer Clubs, Snowboard/Ski club, Radio club and Yearbook! This all by itself demonstrates an awesome truth the students at Scona and their diversity in talents and interests.

Welcome Week may have started with quite a few people standing by as simple observers, but as the week progressed, the number of people willing to join the fun increased too. This is one of the most tangible truths Welcome Week had to offer: throughout the year at Scona our pride will increase and our inhibitions decrease, just as they did during Welcome Week.

TRUE BLUE

What exactly is a fan? None of us needs a dictionary definition to describe the complex nature of our fans. In my opinion, there are two different classifications of a fan. The first are the closet fans. They hid throughout the entire regular season, but once the city championships role around they appear. Their appearances are noted by both creative face paint and hoarseness of voices from their relentless roaring of encouragement for our athletes. The second type is the "well-rounded, always there to give their team a boost" fan. This fan will not only be at city championships, but at regular meets and games to cheer on the hard working individuals who are participating. These fans not only consist of moms and dads, but of students like you and me. Fans are a vital key which opens the door to greater success for all our teams. Whether we watched out teams in the humid confines of swimming pools, on the freezing bleachers of a late autumn football game or the sweltering sun of the city track finals, we were involved. If anyone ever questions our actions we proudly tell them we do it for the love of our sport and of course, our school.

TRUE SPIRIT

One of the best things about Scona is our vibrant school spirit and pride. When our annual pep rally comes around all of the students are rambunctious and ready to prove their dedication to Scona.

Many different clubs and teams assembled in the gym to show their school spirit. These teams included: Scona's very own cross-country team, which demonstrated some "ROCKY" pride for their 23rd consecutive city championship, the football team who introduced us to the entire team, junior and senior men's and women's volleyball and the swim team. This year our Students Union added a tumbling act with students from all over the city demonstrating their true gymnast abilities. We can't forget the hard working clubs around our school, such as Scona Pride adding some Christmas cheer with their Christmas projects or the yearbooks rendition of the X- Files.

This years presentation went through the roof! Everyone showed they are ready to get involved and participate. These groups performed cheers, skits and I'm sure no one will forget the sight of all that skin! Once again the jazz band was a big part of the pep rally as they played several songs including one by our own school president. The pep rally was a great success and proved that Scona is full of spirit. As students left the gym were they wondered, "How can we top this, next year?"

SCARY MONSTERS AND A PEAK AT SANTA

Lords and ghosts and ghoulies: oh my! Yes Gaylord, we're still at Scona; it's just Halloween and do we ever know how to celebrate.

As you walked down the halls on Halloween, you couldn't help but realize that Halloween isn't just for little kids (it's for candy-deprived high school students as well).

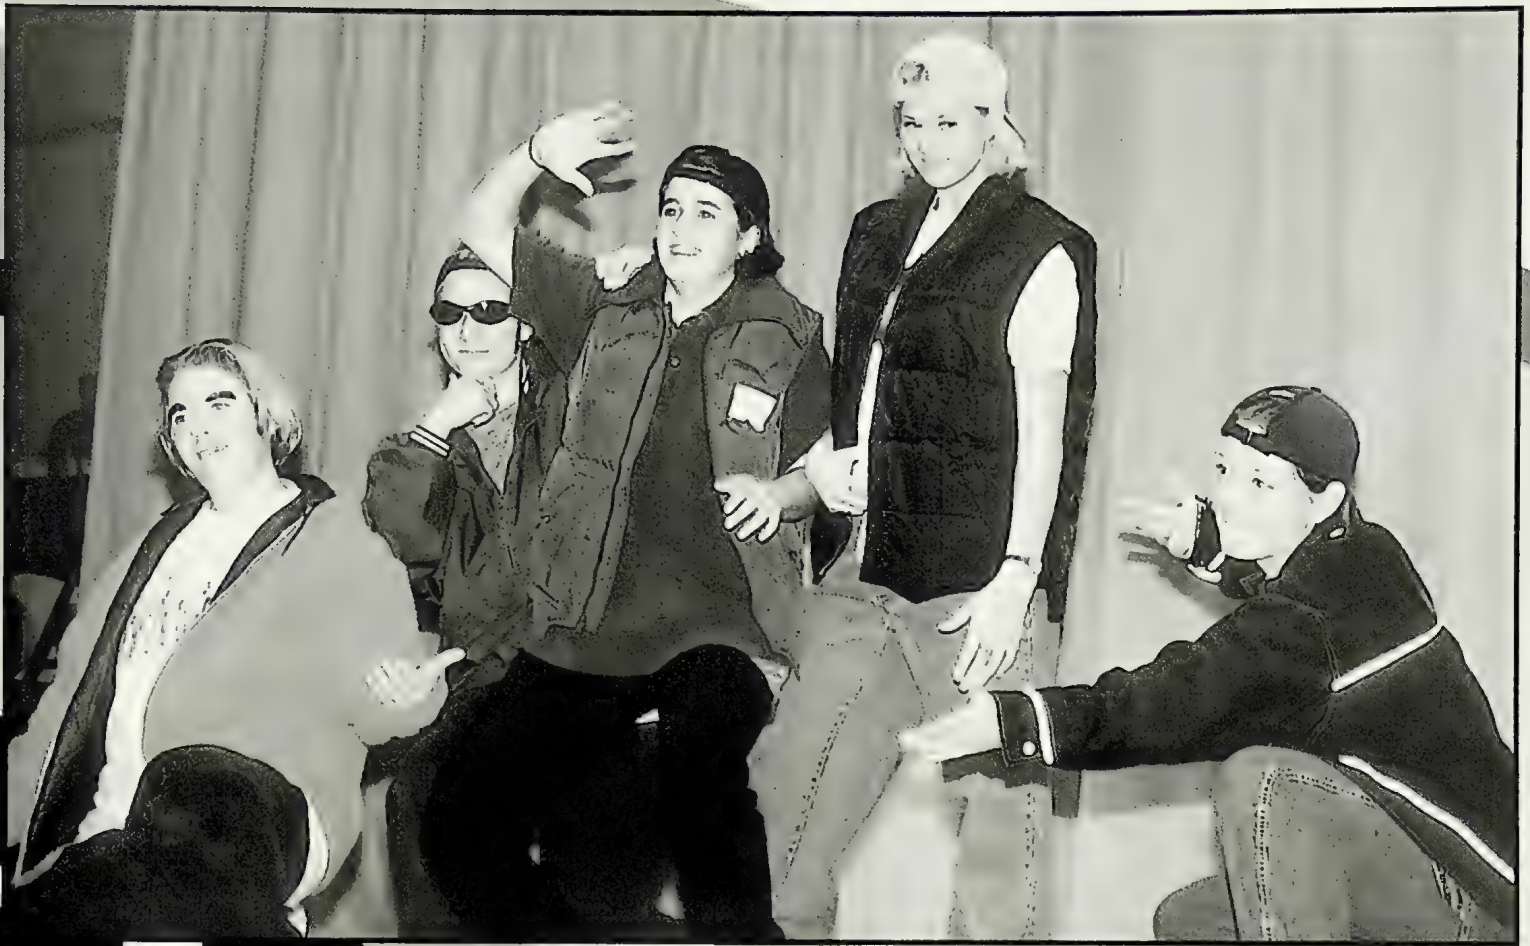

Students' Union put on an excellent haunted house that was guaranteed to scare or humor even that mean old man who used to steal your balls when they landed in his yard. People came from near and far to see our Halloween Fashion show. We had cave men, animals and even some super-heroes came to join in on the fun. We even had some celebrities drop by. The highlight of the day was musical performances by the Spice Girls (yes boys, they do sing) and the Backstreet Boys (I get all faint just thinking about it).

Christmas on the other hand is the season for caring and sharing, so if you attend Scona, you may care to share your lack of talent with the rest of the school, in Scona's annual L.I.T. There were various talent-less acts (actually some of them were pretty good). Some of the bands that competed in the Battle of the Bands decided to make an appearance, including the winners Tokinsence (apparently they weren't informed that you must be lacking in talent, not possessing it). Aside from the opera singer and the dance act, there was even a stunt biker. Do you people just not understand that it is a lacking in talent show not a full of talent show. All these talented acts put the Talent at the end of Lacking In. Maybe next year students will show an understanding of the term L.I.T. and suck. Then again, probably not, since this is Scona.

FORLORN AND FOOTLOOSE

If you need to get down and get funky with your bad self, you must have attended the dances at Scona. The lights, the music and the friendly people would attract anyone to a high school dance. The entire student body was able to attend a variety of dances. To get us started, the Welcome Week dance was held in September. The Holiday Classic dance got everyone into the Christmas spirit. Dances at Scona were loved by all and who better to bring to one of Scona's famous dances, than your significant other?

Speaking of that special someone, Valentine's Day is a lovely day, in which you celebrate by having someone shower you with attention, flowers and chocolate. But if you live in the "real world," it's just another greeting card holiday where you have to go out and try to find a meaningful gift, when you'd rather just buy a generic gift and a cheap card. If you are fortunate enough to attend Scona, there are other ways to celebrate this commercial holiday. You can send your sweet heart a candy-gram or attend the Valentine's Day Jive in the cafeteria, where, if you are sweet heartless, our studly S.U. president will surely dance with you.

IN SEARCH OF A HO-DOWN

Yeee-haa!!! Get out them boots, grab yourself a partner and come on down to Scona for a pancake breakfast and a western ho-down. This year, Western Days was held on April 24th. It shall not be forgotten, as Scona students experienced karaoke magic!! They sang loudly and clearly—everything from traditional songs to more modern tunes. Luckily, no windows were broken. There was dancing, eating, singing, cowboy hats, and many smiles. All that was missing was a few horses!! A tip of the hat goes out to Students' Union for the hard work and wonderful planning. Until next year....giddy up, cowboy!!

INTERNATIONAL WEEK

Canada is a multicultural country, hosting many different people from many different countries. The same concept applies to Scona. At our school, we pay tribute to other countries and cultures. We do this as Scona holds its annual International Week, giving students and teachers a chance to experience different cultures. The week started out with an assembly, where there were dancers such as the Magoo Crew and an East Indian dance troop. Other acts from around the school and the city showed us other diverse talents and diverse cultures. A food fair in the gym, gave students a chance to taste foods from all over the world. The Royal Canadian Armed Forces brought a display over to Scona, to show some of Canada's multicultural diversity. To top off the week, students and teachers participated in an international game show.

SKIN OF OUR TEETH

After the success of The Rimers of Eldridge and Wild Oats, few thought yet another Scona drama success would be possible. The cast and crew of this year play, The Skin of Our Teeth, were up to the challenge. After months of preparation, and countless hours of longwinded rehearsals. The cast and crew would be ready in a few more months. Unfortunately, as in all yearplays, the opening was the next day. The hectic last minute costume runs, pacing backstage and pure energy and acting ability add up to make up the yearplay. It is undeniable that Phoebe Krudys, Mike Hudson, Olwen Cowan, and Tyler Waye were beyond expectation. No one involved can forget the four directors, two stage managers, and two technicians that made up the yearplay bureaucracy, the friends, late after school building sets or afternoon practices from 12 until 6. This is the experience of yearplay and the reason every year students flock to put together in so much work and the reason everything seems to turn out OK. A huge thanks to Ms. Blanchard, Mr. Beecroft, Ms. Carolyn Waye, and Mr. Fenton for all their hard work.

SEARCHING FOR AN OSCAR

Anyone brave enough to venture towards the drama room during the preparations of the One Acts would have noticed the enchanting aroma of latex paint and wondrous symphony of swears and screams of terror wafting off the stage towards them. This is a time when Drama 30 student directors go without sleep and remain at school nearly 24/7. This year, Scona students were fortunate enough to have a second dose of the One Acts (one during each semester). During the festival, patrons had the opportunity to see nine different plays on the 20, 21, 22 and 23. The following plays were performed during that week: The Tridget of Greva; Tick; Degas, C'est Moi; The Small Private World of Michael Marston; The Damask Drum; Still Stands the House; Sure Thing; What did you say 'what' for?; and Live Spelled Backwards. This year's One Acts was a great success with two of the plays, Degas, C'est Moi and The Damask Drum performed at the city drama festival. All the hard work and practice shone through their performances each night. The dedication that each student put into their production demonstrates Scona's striving excellence to the arts.

Truth In

Victory

#23 AND STILL RUNNING STRONG

Many forget that it takes more than numbers to win a city championship—it takes a strong consistent effort from the many students that make up the team. This year, the Lords made more noise cheering on the busses and at the meets than ever before and will surely be remembered as the loudest and the fastest scona team yet.

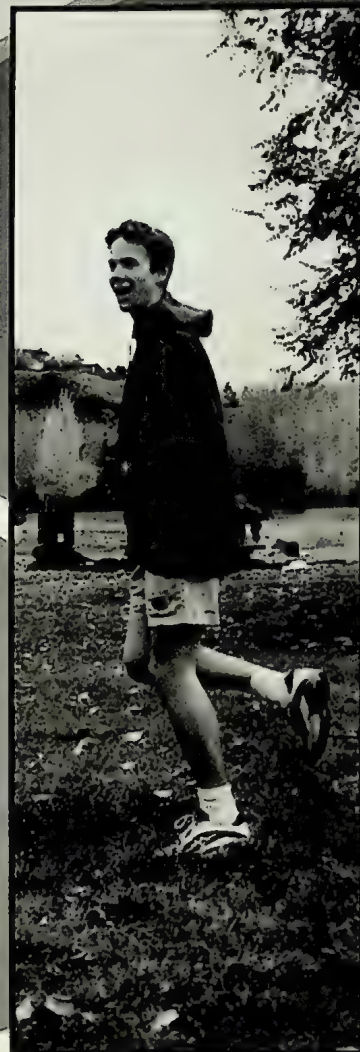

The many days of consistent training, no matter what the weather, were apparent as the Lords crushed the other teams at every meet this year with outstanding performances. It wasn't a rare occurrence to see nearly a hundred runners out a practice enjoying the big-team spirit, getting in shape and having fun in all of the activities that go along with the cross country team. The Lords captured titles at the Ross Sheppard Rookie Meet, the McNally Meet, the Relay Meet at Hawrelak Park, the Pre-Cities and the City Finals at Goldbar.

Rumor has it that winning a city championship for the twenty-third time is not a big deal. To tell you the truth, for all those who participated and put their sweat, blood and tears into each race, every City Championship is sweeter.

SPIKING FOR A CHAMPIONSHIP

Here at Scona is where you will see volleyball at its best. Our Senior women captured the city championship for the fifth year in a row. They came in first in the U of A tournament, first at the Bev Facey tournament and second at Salisbury. The Senior men were very close behind coming third in the city. Up against some tough competition, they captured gold in the Top Gun tournament and placed fourth in the UBC tournament that consisted of 40 teams. The Junior men showed no exception. The young new talent that abides within our school wall is awesome. The Junior women showed a strong fight all the way to the consolation semifinals. The year was long and intense for a new team learning how to play together. With all of this hard work and great accomplishments, this once again demonstrates the tradition in excellence that exists on the volleyball court and within the halls of our great school.

CHARGING TOWARDS THE TRUTH

Scona has always excelled in sports and this was one of the best years that we've had in a long time. Over forty players braved the weather to practice and play the games. Nor rain, nor sleet nor dark of night will keep Scona's football players from doing their best.

This year the junior and senior teams were combined giving the team experience and new energy. Maybe the fresh spirit was what brought them into the playoffs or was it the elder's knowledge of the game? It doesn't really matter as long as their hearts were in it. With a great coaching staff and highly skilled and dedicated players, the football team has been able to charge forward into new horizons, opening up a new window of possibility for the team in years to come.

With such a successful season, Scona football will continue to improve and make its mark on Scona.

KICKING TOWARDS NUMBER TWELVE

December 3, 1997 was the day of truth for the Strathcona Lords swim team- city finals. After three month of grueling practices, countless laps, and weekly meets, they were about to go head to head with their closest rivals, the Ross Shepard Thunderbirds. Aware of a possible disaster the Lords prepared for the swim of their lives and in doing so, the team's spirit was strengthened along with their bodies.

City finals was a day of competition, but it was also a day of body paint and a lot of fun. Every guy sported a courageous urge to win. Gaylord came out to cheer with the team that included several smooth-legged male cheerleaders, complete with short red & gold skirts.

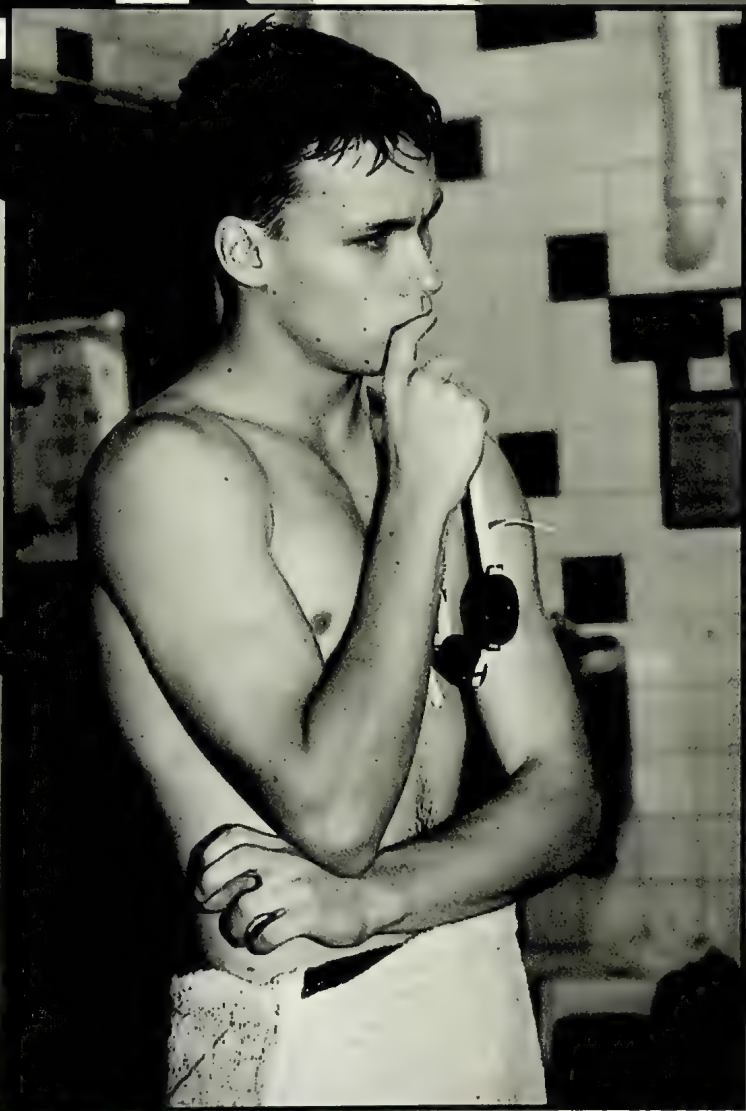

The T-Birds put up a strong fight but the Lords reigned supreme (would you expect anything else), winning both boys and girls aggregate and bringing home the grand aggregate trophy for the twelfth consecutive time! This impressive record adds swimming to Scona's athletic dynasty.

A BASKET OF SUCCESS

Once again, our hoop stars have jumped, dribbled, and slam-dunked their way through another successful season. There was a lot of heart within our Senior Women's team as they fought their way into the playoffs finishing 4th in the public league. They fell just short of city semi-finals, losing a tough game to Memorial CHS. All the hard work and commitment paid off for our Senior Men as they roared their way to a second place standing in the public league and earning a 3rd place spot in the provincial rankings. Both teams matched up well against teams from all over western Canada whom they played during tournaments in Saskatchewan, Red Deer, and Medicine Hat among others.

The Junior Men's and Women's teams showed a lot of determination as their 9th and 5th place finishes, respectively, were definitely a good sign for Scona's future on the basketball courts.

SMASHING SUCCESS AND A ROCKING GOOD TIME

The Badminton and Curling teams are becoming more popular each and every year. Each team produces more enthusiastic members who help Scona to continue it's tradition in excelling in athletics.

The curling team started off the year with 25 members which resulted in six completed teams; four junior and two senior. Under the experienced coaching of Mr. Kulka, Ms. O'Brien, and Ms. Baile the team was up against tough competition during the regular season from Harry Ainly and Louis St Laurent and in the end, the Lords held their own and produced great results. The two senior teams made Cities and the senior women's team brought home the City Championship.

The badminton team continued to strive toward their championship goals as they started off the year with a new coach. This minor adjustment didn't affect the team in the least as they continued to play and improve their skills during the regular season. Scona also managed to send some of their badminton team members to the Senior National Championships. These two teams demonstrated commitment and success throughout the year. Congratulations!

SOCCER AT SCONA

Soccer is back at Scona!! Both the girls and the guys teams worked hard, building a new tradition at Scona. The girls team did very well this year, posting one victory as well as many great efforts. The girls practiced everyday after school and played games on Mondays and Wednesdays. The last game was on May 27, 1998 against J. Percy Page. There was constant improvement throughout the year as the girls got to know one another and became familiar with the high school league. Good work gals - best of luck next year. The boys team lead by Radek, "The Barbarian" Kwasniewski did very well making it to post season play. There was lots of excitement as the boys won 2 out of 7 games. All the games were close and proved that Scona is more than just track and swimming! Great season guys! Next year lets hope that the rest of Scona comes out and cheers for the teams that we as students lobbied so hard for! At the end of the year three team awards were handed out.

THE TRADITION CARRIES ON #27!

Two. Seven. Placed together, these numbers define what over 120 Scona students bled, wept, and fought for. Moreover, for the first time in years, Scona actually had to fight to claim its city championship and further its world record. There was the teacher's work-to-rule campaign that threatened to end track, low school spirit that was becoming omnipresent, the fear of being the year that lost "it," not to mention, especially tough competition from other schools, namely Ross Sheppard. Yet, even in the face of all this adversity, Strathcona's athletes stood up strong, practicing five days a week, from the second week of April through the first week of June and the city championship. With beautiful weather, than to El Niño, and the fresh spirit of Mr. Harle, who was starting his first year as the track and field head coach, the practices were filled with good spirits and hard work. The effort put in by everyone who came out to practices was superhuman. Runners training until every sinew in their leg hurt, or their lungs stopped working, throwers practicing until their arms are unable to roll a javelin, much less hurl a shot-put. These students demonstrated that the trophies were not given to Scona, they earned each and every year for the past 27 years. May Scona's legacy of legacies continue until the green-tiled walls come down.

SHAKESPEARE TO THE COLD WAR

"To be or not to be? That is the question" and "Will there ever be peace in the middle east?" The answers to these questions could only be found in English and Social. The only two 5-credit classes that every single student in this school must take, enhance communication skills and enable us to-almost understand Shakespeare, learn how to debate (or shall I say bash), like, the UN officials, and to write the ever-important essay. Both the English and Social Studies programs at Scona are extremely strong. We are fortunate enough to have the AC/AP program in both English and Social Studies.

English students study everything from Romeo and Juliet to Hamlet and 1984 as well as numerous poems and essays on about a billion different topics. Highlights in Social include the UN Debate in Social 20/23 and the countless hours spent analyzing history and political systems. Even though we may not know it now, these two essential courses will become very useful in the future.

STOICHIOMETRY AND POLYNOMIALS

Elizabeth Stevenson finds the solution to her Math 30 problem.

We're here to talk about science. No, not that moldy sandwich that's been in your locker for God knows how long, but Bio, Chem, and Physics. If we're going to talk about science, math will have to fit in there somewhere too. Even though science may not be the most fun thing to talk about, it is a fun thing to do. How can you not love Bio? You learn about plants, animals and humans (and you get to dissect things). Chem is fun too. Even if you can't tell your oxidizing agents from your reducing agents (or the difference between Kin and Ric), you have to admit that playing with harsh chemicals is fun—just don't drink them. Physics and math are in the same category. They both involve trigonometry and a lot of swearing...it's all good. Without them, you may never know the unknown angle of a triangle or the speed at which a watermelon falls off a building.

The question that goes through everyone's mind is "will I ever use this again?" The answer is "YES." Just think...with all the knowledge you've collected, you can do your own tax returns, make bombs and clone sheep. What more could you ask for?

CREATIVE THOUGHTS

Everyone is talented in their own special way and Scona gives students an opportunity to express themselves in art, drama, or a second language class. You will learn to improve your drawing, painting and sculpting techniques by taking art. Turn your average picture into a masterpiece to be displayed in the display case by the Scona room. You may not be ready to star in The Titanic but you can still pretend that you did. In drama, you can improve, learn mime and you can learn to write and direct your own plays. You can also learn to do lighting and make-up. At the end of the year you can participate in either the One Acts or the Yearplay. Bonjour mon amie, Donna esta la sanatorio? If you had taken a second language this year you'd know what that meant. Scona offers a variety of language courses such as, French, Spanish and German. Just think with this you could impress the ladies by speaking to them in French (the language of love), pursue your career as a bullfighter in Spain, or do very well in Social 30 by understanding terms without having to memorize them. Even if the career you desire does not lie in the realm of arts or language. They can make you have a better appreciation for the arts and broaden your horizons. You can't tell me that knowing a few languages won't help you on your vacations to Europe when you're a rich doctor (I hear Spain's nice in the spring).

A few of Scona's talented students perform in their production.

SEARCHING BEYOND THE BASICS

Business Education

Computers have become essential in today's society. If you can't use one you'll become road-kill on the information super-highway. If you are computer illiterate, Scona offers a variety of courses for you. They even have courses for the average computer user as well as the hacker. Word processing will help your typing skills, or lack of, and show you how to make your documents snazzier. You'll also learn how to make multimedia presentations. Computer programming will teach you to write simple programs. If you get far enough in the courses, you will learn how to surf the net and make your own web page. If learning to use a computer isn't your bag, you could try computer assisted drafting (CAD). There are some people out there who seem to hate computers, but there are still business courses for you. Try accounting. A very practical course that teaches you the basic about general finances. Maybe next year, you can do your taxes!

Career & Technology Studies

Career and technology studies (CTS) is a new program that was introduced to Scona this year. It deals mainly with the industrial arts aspect of the school but it also includes units in CALM, social studies and computers. Often offering a pleasant change from the medium of everyday classroom work, CTS courses provide students with hands-on experiences that will be very useful in years to come. These courses, including CAD, photography, electronics, car care, desktop publishing, silkscreening and woodworking, challenge students to apply theoretical knowledge to practical problems. Every month, in each CTS course, a student of the month is chosen to recognize his or her hard work and exceptional performance. Another highlight for CTS students is they get the opportunity to attend NAIT's Open House, and learn more about their programs and how they relate to what the students are taking. Scona's CTS program is first rate. Whether you want job preparation or just an interesting elective, the CTS program are likely for you.

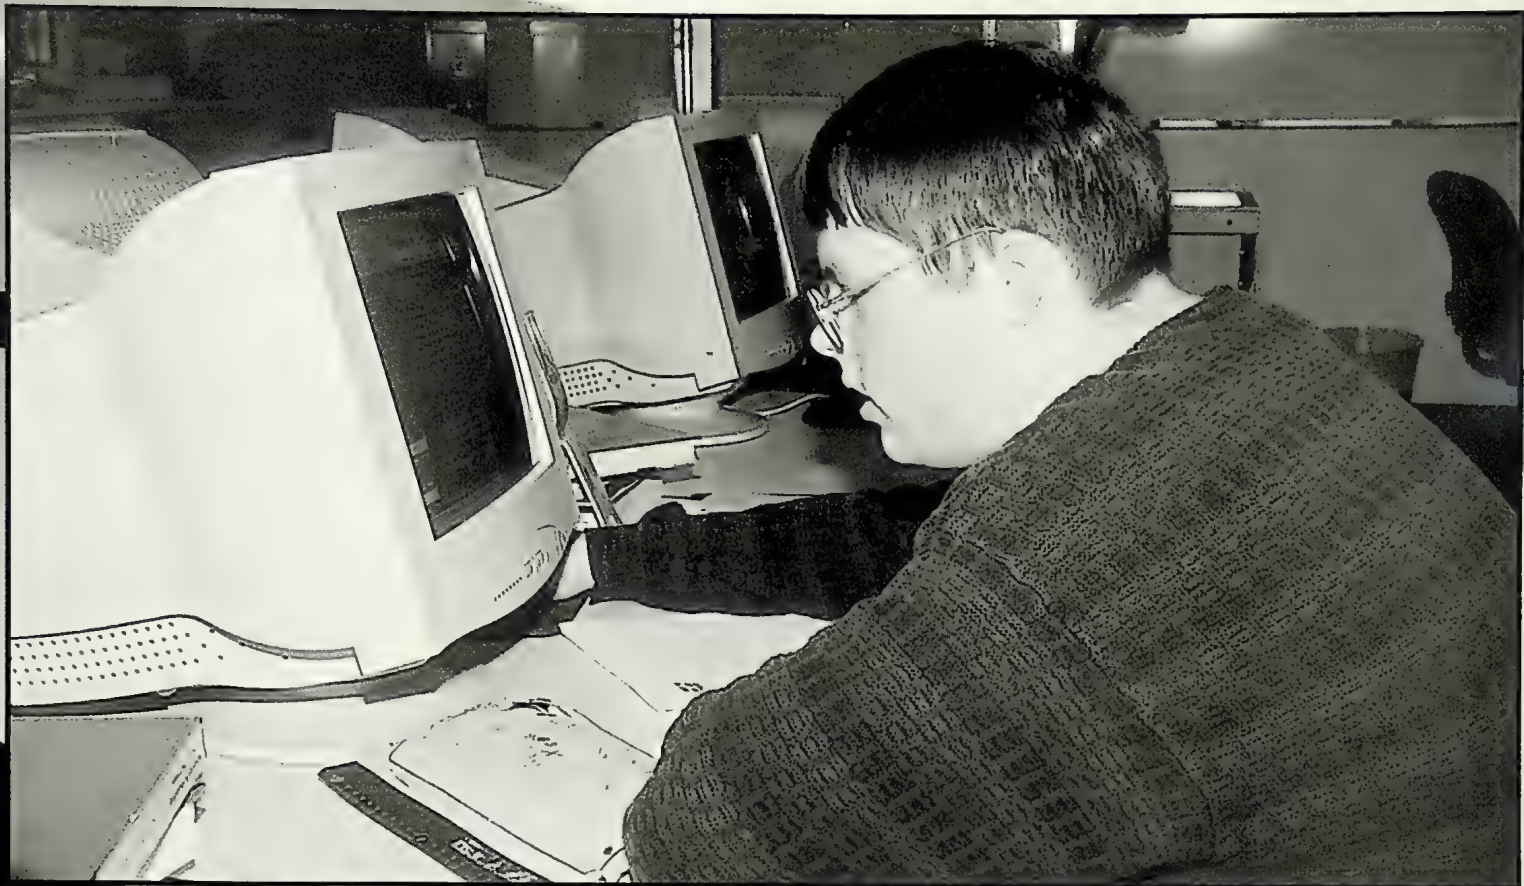

CALM

As we struggle through our teen years, Scona does its best to prepare us for life as adults, by offering us a course in career and life management (CALM). There, you learn valuable life skills. Everyone needs to get a job and your prospective employer's first impression of you is found in your resume. They will show you how to beef it up and make it look very impressive. They give you the chance to know what it's like to move out of your house—without ever leaving the safety of a classroom. During the year there will be visits from various speakers from the Edmonton Police Service, the AIDS network, and nurses to talk to you about drug abuse, safe sex, and eating disorders. This course will also deal with issues such as stress management, finance management, as well as other social issues that effect many teens such as drinking and driving. CALM is important and teaches students issues, that they may come across in their lifetime.

Foods

So you've reached high school and in a few years you'll be on your own. Only one problem: you can't cook. Sure you can make KD, but you can't live off that, and you most likely won't find someone who will do all your cooking for you. Just because for the last 16 years of your life Mommy and Daddy made all your meals, it doesn't mean that they will provide you with wholesome and nutritious meals for the rest of your life. What are you going to do? You can't live off fast food? Then take a foods course, silly. You'll learn how to make healthy and affordable meals. From biscuits to casseroles, the foods teacher will show you the ropes. Maybe after taking the course you'll even be able to make dinner for Mom and Dad for a change—unless they're really old. (The shock might send them into cardiac arrest.)

This student practices the fine art of chopping onions for a scrumptious entrée made in Foods 10.

CALM 20 teaches students, like Candace Rypien, how to choose the best career for you.

Whoa! Whoever said that searching for the truth would be easy must be crazy. Yearbook is truly a commitment, and for anyone who has been associated with the staff or has passed by our room will know we have been there morning, noon, and night all year long. We are constantly scrambling during deadlines, sifting through pictures, organizing the perfect layout, and learning about the wonderful world of computers.

This year's theme "In Search of Truth" has been relevant throughout the year. Not only in yearbook but, it could easily be a theme for our lives. For me, "searching for truth" meant learning how to turn the computer on (ah scary). As we continued to develop our photography, layouts and computer skills, we realized that this wasn't so bad and this experience was in fact a rewarding one that we all will indeed miss. The idea of immortalizing moments in time and putting them together to make a story about a year in the lives of Scona students is truly a challenging job. We always strive to do better than the previous years and to go beyond our own expectations. I can proudly say that the entire staff worked very hard to produce the 97/98 book. Special thanks to the "little cheese" Melissa for being my right hand woman. To Chelsea, Herman, Kris, Muneet and Trang for the long hours and dedication. To the clubs, students, and teachers for their contributions and support. A super special thanks to Ms. Sheehan for the much appreciated spell checks, grammar checks and edits. To the super "big cheese" Mr. Gerun for the constant support and guidance. I wish the best of luck to the upcoming editor, Phil, and his partner Laura, and I wish that their search for the truth is as wonderful as mine.

MC the Pep Rally.

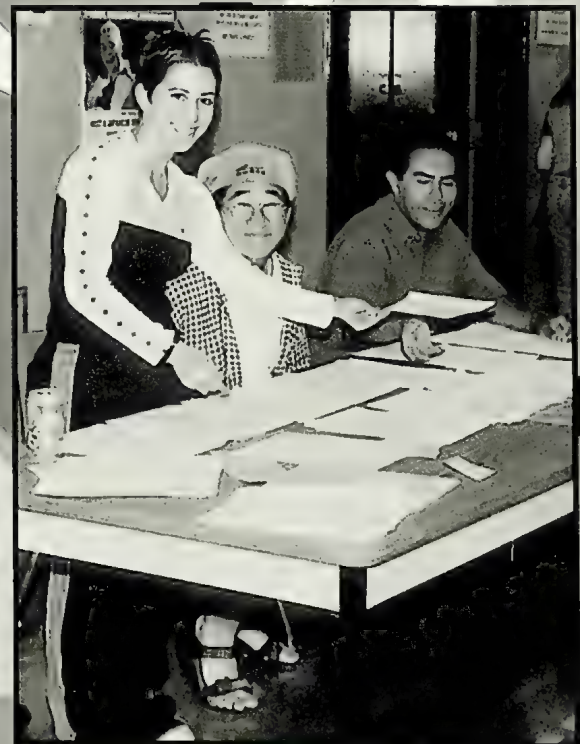

What a year for SU! Running around, getting McDonald's drink for events, setting up chairs, dealing with elementary kids on Hallowe'en, putting up with Mr. Yeske singing karaoke during Western Daze, making grade tens cheer during Welcome Week, and just having fun can be really tiring. Those dudes with the bright red kangaroo tops did much more than schmooze in that broom closet inside the Scona room. They had a goal of achieving a level of Scona spirit unprecedented throughout Scona's tradition, and boy, did they do it. We've had ups and downs, but most of all, we've had fun, and that's what counts. Starting with Welcome Week, we "initiated" all of those grade tens into those savage beasts that so many other schools call "Lords". We grooved at dances, we raised awareness of global issues, like AIDS, and we attempted to cook hot dogs. None of our events would have been successful without the hard work, dedication, and perseverance of the SU executive, the staff, and the students. After all, we are the Lords, mighty mighty Lords, red and gold, red and gold, FIGHT FIGHT FIGHT!

GRAD COUNCIL

This year's Grad Council put an enormous amount of dedication to make this year's graduation the best one ever. The amount of planning and organization they did throughout the entire year paid off in the end as they organized a very successful silent auction, commencement ceremony and banquet. But, if it wasn't for the behind the scenes work like the decorations, cap and gown rentals or booking the convention centre the event wouldn't have gone as smoothly as it did. This years grad theme was "Make Your Mark" and this group of very committed people definitely made their mark of the grad 98'

MUSICAL NOTES

One of the most underrated areas of talent at Scona is the music program. Many forget the fantastic group of dedicated and melodically inclined students that work so hard to bring us great concerts, add spice to pep rallies and continually add to the great traditions at Scona with superior results at music competitions.

Junior Band, consisting of grade tens, debuted this year with a fantastic performance at the 8th Annual Christmas Concert. Following this great start, the Junior Band had high hopes for the fast approaching festivals. Starting with a Silver performance at the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival in Sherwood Park, and an Excellence rating at the Alberta Band Association Festival in Red Deer, the Junior Band demonstrated that they would indeed live up to the traditions of music excellence. To bring the year to a close, this group of grade tens left us with a great performance at commencement ceremonies followed by a powerful year end concert. The grade eleven and twelve students make up the talented Senior Band. This year, the Senior Band performed at the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival and at the Canadian Rocky Mountain Music Festival in Banff. The last concert for the grade twelves came with the phenomenal yet emotional performance at the year end concert. This year's group was exceptionally strong and demonstrated the vast amount of talent that Scona students possess. The music talent doesn't stop here! A small but dedicated group of talented students keeps us rockin' all year long. These groups are the Jazz Band and the Jazz Combo. The Jazz Band made up of the all stars from grade ten, eleven and twelve, made Scona history this year by bringing home a GOLD from the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival! This is a tremendous accomplishment and puts Scona Jazz among the very best in all of Alberta. The Jazz Band also played with such jazz greats as Tommy Banks at the Yardbird Suite where they blew their audience away with one of the best performances ever! Following these great performances, the group went on to a super show in Banff and a killer year end concert. The smallest group at Scona, the Jazz Combo, also had a tremendous year. This group of grade twelve dudes played at the Grey Cup Football Experience, at the U of A Hospital, pep rallies, commencements, and just about everywhere that a great band was needed! And who you may ask, "orchestrates" all of these musical endeavors? None other than the amazing Mr. Klause whose commitment to the music program has made it what it is today. Congratulations to a very special and memorable year of music filled with unparalleled successes.

TRUE COMMUNICATION

Ruban Lawrence works on the next SCAM project.

The SCAM Club and the Awards Board are two clubs at Scona that take pride in their accomplishments and allow both students and the school to be recognized for their efforts. In the year of (kaleidoscope) '98, a group of eight students, two teachers and two parent volunteers, were in the process of bringing the Awards Night together. From September to April, meetings were held for planning and discussion. In the month of May, awards are assigned to individuals in different areas. Awards Night is a night that celebrates individuals in categories of academics, athletics, arts, and service to the community and school. Truly a night to remember. The SCAM club is Scona's Media club. SCAM alerts the media about Scona events such as International week, Scona pride projects, etc. Another very important responsibility of this club is the prestigious "Lord Award", an award of recognition for outstanding community/school involvement, athletics, and academics. The SCAM club is completely responsible for this award. They choose the winner monthly and set up a prize package for him/her. SCAM also updates a display board every 1-2 months. The display board is filled with pictures of Scona moments, Lord award winners, and students of the month. SCAM is also responsible for the monthly newsletter to parents. Many hours are spent each month typing, bickering, and doing layout on computers. This club is a fine club made up of a superb bunch of students.

Members from the LIP admire a job well done.

IN SEARCH OF SPEECH

Words, words, words and more words. There is never a shortage of words at Scona, with Scona's school newspaper the LIP and the Debate club. Both these groups had a busy year. The LIP Scona's very own newspaper became more in tune with the school by introducing LIPOFFS, an opinions page, a writing contest, and special features on politics, eating disorders, stress (something high school students know far too well), and human rights. These new features added a whole new dimension to the LIP. The Debate team also proved to be highly innovative this year. For the first time ever, Scona hosted its first debate tournament. Our sweet talking debaters handle the situation well and the debate was a success. In addition to our first tournament, the debate team held a mock debate at Christmas. The question was: Be it resolved that the Christmas spirit is gone. This allowed all students to experience a fun (and shall I say) lively debate. Both the LIP and the debate team rely heavily on support from Scona students. For instance without the people who pick up doughnuts, I have no idea how the LIP would ever get folded. In all honesty, the LIP is put out by a team of diligent, hardworking editors, and a group of fantastic writers. Thanks to every one involved in the LIP and the debate team.

TRULY ONES WHO SERVE

As part of Scona Pride's projects, Gaylord visits a child in the hospital during Christmas.

The 1997-1998 school year marked the fifth anniversary of Scona Pride and what milestones the club achieved. Highly respected in the community, Scona Pride was presented the Silver Laurel award at "A Celebration of Leadership" in April, honoring exceptional creativity and innovation for non-profit organizations. Scona Pride was at peak performance this year, serving Scona with the largest of all club enrollments-35 members and was highlighted by numerous events.

The members truly embodied our school's Latin motto "Ut Qui Ministrat"-As One Who Serves- and it shined through all projects including the Camp Nakamun leadership retreat, delivery of 2,090 teddy bears at Christmas, the Project India Swim-a-Thon, Operation Christmas Child shoe boxes and the fabulous fourth annual Easter basket raffle.

The style of leadership and dedication this club showed Scona, is not only impressive but unsurpassed by few. The pride they showed in their school, Edmonton, and internationally, was supported by Scona staff and students, community members and two partnerships.

IN SEARCH OF SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Did you ever wonder where the groovy music that you hear in the morning or at lunch comes from? Or how about the cheers and grunts coming from the gym at lunch hour? Well, it's Scona's marvellous radio and intermural clubs.

The Radio Club started off the year with a very enthusiastic group. Lead by Mr. Watson, they sacrificed sleeping in and free lunch hours to provide the school with some toe tapping music. The music ranged from Top 40 to classical to jazz. This range of great music appealed to everyone. So you say, what else could you do at lunch beside listening to some great music? Well, there is always the wonderful world of intermurals. Intermurals is a great alternative to lunch time boredom. Especially when it's too cold to go outside or you are sick of just sitting around your locker. Intermurals is kind of like a co-ed gym class. You get to play a variety of sports and meet a lot of great people. So the next time you think that there is absolutely nothing to do during lunch hour. Think again! The radio and intermurals club are a great alternative to pass the boring lunch times away.

SEARCHING FOR A CHECKMATE

A large white mass is rolling down the ski hill. Is it an avalanche? No, it's a Scona student who attempted a death dyfing jump. Scona's snowboard and ski club had a successful year and is by far one of Scona's most popular club with over 40 members. The club trips up to Fernie, Lake Louise, and Banff this year not to mention the numerous trips to Rabbit Hill. This club was proudly lead by Mr. Laniuk and continues to be a club that is part of Scona's on-going traditions. Most students came back with wonderful tans and numerous stories about seeing the teacher fall, a hotel rooming experience, and bus ride games.

Scona students not only had fun this year but, they also challenged their minds daily by playing chess throughout lunch hours. This group of dedicated students formed Scona's chess club. Each member was part of the chess pyramid and the goal was to make it to the top. As a grand finale, the chess club organized a chess tournament open to anyone interested. Congratulations to the winner Dallas Dyer. Come and "check" out the chess club next year.

REWARDING LOGIC

So can anyone actually remember what the quadratic formula is or the computer language needed to create a program of your own? Well, my bet is that someone in either the math club or the computer club could. What's the deal with Math Club? Is it just a bunch of students gathering each month just to write a lousy math contest? No! Math Club is more than this, or at least just a bit more interesting. Every year and every month starting from September, the Canadian National Math League hosts a series of math contests and it is available to all students who wish to attend to write it. Though most people are more interested to the "extras" behind the contest, as the CNML's contest is very challenging. Also, it helps students to improve thinking skills and ways of approaching math questions. Beside monthly contests, the University of Waterloo hosts 3 different categories of contests for each grade. They are the Cayley (Gr. 10), Fermat (Gr. 11) and Euclid (Gr. 12). In the spring, Scona hosts Math Week. During Math Week, there will be speakers hosting sessions in the Scona Room to present their specialities and talents. Other activities such as a caricature contest and a problem of the day are announced everyday during the week. In addition to Scona's number crunchers, we are very proud to have a computer club. This club was headed by David Wong and like the math club, these student spent many lunch hours learning more about the wonderful world of computers and kept Scona's technological highway open for business. So if you are interested in the language of mathematics or the complexity of computers, be sure to get involved next year.

Principal's Message

This year was Strathcona's 90th year of history and our students continued to excel in academics, athletics, fine arts and community service. School pride and school spirit remained very high and our reputation in the community continues to be very positive.

I want to express my congratulations to our yearbook staff and Mr. Gerun for producing this excellent record of this school year. Strathcona yearbooks provide us with an official record of the people, the activities, and the successes that form the basis of our traditions.

It is my sincere hope that Strathcona will continue to provide our students with the knowledge skills and attitudes that are required for their continued success.

TRUE LEADERS

Scona staff are proud to lead Scona students in being seekers of truth. They truly feel that Scona is serious in educating for life, and a major component of that education is looking for all perspectives, all truths.

Seeking truth means going beyond the expected and the accepted. It means the field trips, the guest lectures, the University of Alberta Hospital partnership, the experiments, the searches on the Internet. It also means going beyond Canada's borders through charity work like Scona Pride, through trips to Costa Rica and Japan, and through exchange students. Within Canadian borders it means a reconsideration of such historical figures as Louis Riel and Emily Murphy, even questioning the established authorship of William Shakespeare, in proving self in labs, on the courts and on the fields, in music and math competitions, and in drama and art, even in winning that twenty-seventh Track and Field City Championship!

Scona staff act as evaluators, coaches, tour guides, instructors, mentors, tutors, and sometimes just friendly faces, but always they are educators, leading students to truth. They are an important part of Scona's Pride of Lords.

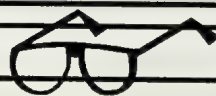

Mr. Kinasevich shows his true spirit by sporting the o-so-trendy UNICEF box.

GRADE 10

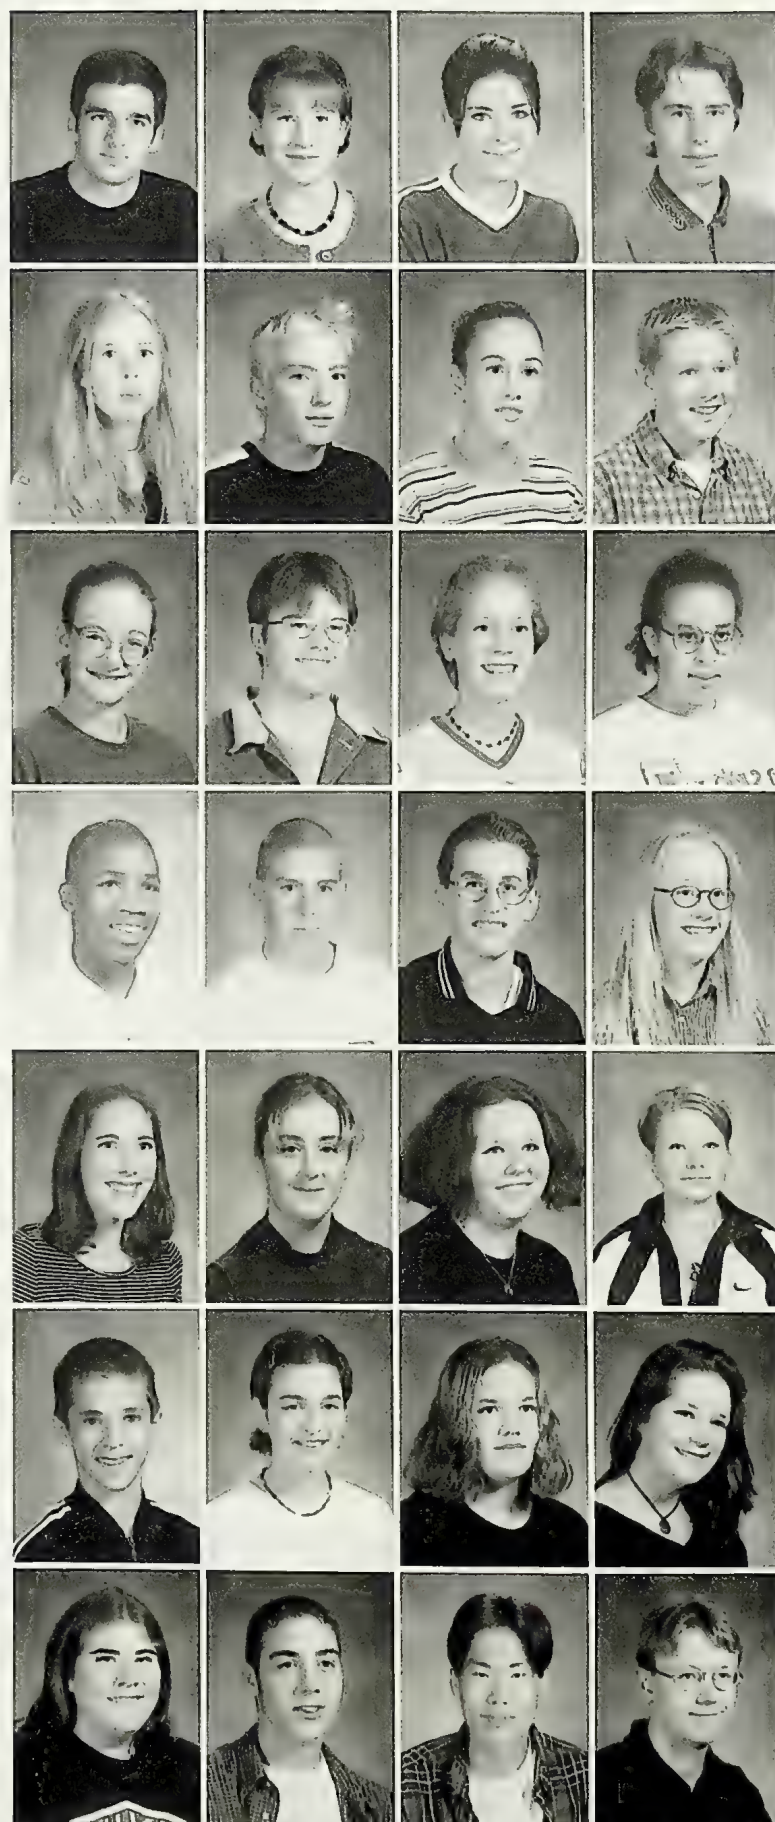

The Truth Is Out There

With a yearbook titled In Search of Truth you might think that it will be an X-Files theme book. It's not but we could not leave the X-Files out of it. If you have been living in a box for the past few years it's a show about government conspiracies and cover-ups to hide the truth from the gullible public and one man's search for the truth and to expose the government agencies that are doing it.

The introduction of this show has sparked an interest into the phenomenon of the supernatural and other phenomena. In some ways these shows reflect our societies desire to search for answers to the unknown.

Our desire to explain the unknown has lead to speculation about unexplainable occurrences of life such as the seven wonders or intelligent life forms in outer space. This wave of thinking can be attributed to our new forces in technology and research which have opened our eyes to limitless ideas of the unknown. This type of development allows us as humans to become closer to things we thought were impossible. Some people may find these ideas far fetched and unrealistic but right now it is hard to tell.

Whether you believe it or not the real winners at this time seem to be the movie industry who have capitalized on the publics ongoing search for the truth about the unknown through their versions of alien invasions and intelligent life form contacts. Maybe one day we will be able to explain the unknown but right now it's still a big mystery waiting to be solved.

SEARCHING FOR PARTNERS

Partnership week was a huge success. From November 17th to 20th we had many interesting presentations from people all around the city. STARS Air Ambulance visited with a great display of what it actually takes to be a part of the STARS team. We also heard from a pair of paramedics. They explained what paramedics do and even demonstrated some of their skills. There was a presentation from emergency room personnel, they told us what really happens in the ER. We were also visited by a sports doctor. He taught us about injuries and how to prevent them, he also talked to us about eating healthy and exercising properly. It was a great opportunity for the community and the school to come together as partners.

WHAT IS IT LIKE TO BE GAYLORD?

In the first few weeks of Grade eleven I heard rumors that a new Gaylord would be unveiled to our school. I begged the core of the Student Union to give me the chance to first wear the costume of the oversized lion. In the months to come I found I was the person S.U called on for the job. It was fantastic, I got to go to a secret meeting to see the costume, and was briefed on how Gaylord would be presented to the school. I will never forget the Pep rally for Gaylord when he was presented to the school. Ever since Gaylord has been involved as a partner in our school and in our community.

What is like to be Gaylord? For me it is a huge privilege, not only the first time I wore the costume, but every appearance I have made since then. Even though Gaylord might have a comical name, I still have a feeling that I am carrying Scona's spirit on my shoulder's or should I say Gaylord's. I will always treasure the times I represented Scona as Gaylord, whether it be the time of the unveiling, the track city finals, boiling away while capturing the imagination of a young girl, or trips to the University Hospital and to bring some happiness into a young person's life. I must admit, when others have the chance to be Gaylord, I have mixed feelings of gladness and jealousy. The character grows on all of us, but I will always have those memories of warm faces and of Scona's many victories.

BACKSTREET AT SCONA

Deep in the heart of every Scona student there lies a closet Backstreet Boys listener just waiting to escape. As the 1997-1998 school year progressed, more and more students came out of their shell and admitted to their fondness of the dynamic five singers. Their two best-selling CD's and cutting edge images, complete with the latest fashions and recent styling hair cuts, made the crooners a pile of money in the late nineties. The Backstreet Boys especially appealed to younger crowds as they took on a sex symbol status for pre teen girls. On a slightly smaller scale at our own Strathcona composite high school six people in particular took a leading role in changing people's attitudes towards "Backstreet". Their idea to form a Backstreet Boys lip syncing group for the Halloween fashion show started out as a joke. However, it was quickly transformed into a complex routine completed with choreography and an advanced sound system. Although the original Backstreet Boys consisted of five members there were Six in the Scona version. Kris Baker (Brian), Naomi Legg (AJ), Annie Meikle (Howie), Danielle Merchant (Nick), Erin Thomson (Brian) and Val Walker (Kevin) labored intensively to dazzle audiences with two Backstreet performances. One took place at the Halloween fashion show and the other at the Christmas LIT. As the crowd vibed and jibed to Get Down, We've got it going on, Backstreet's Back and other catchy tunes, the six fearless impostors combined athleticism with style as they grooved on-stage. Although the real Backstreet Boys will eventually fade away, The Scona version will leave a lasting legacy! BACKSTREET'S BACK.

SCONA'S HOLIDAY CLASSIC

The basketball season started with a bang as Scona held its fourth annual Holiday Classic Basketball tournament on December 4th-6th. Teams from Regina, Airdrie, and BC competed against our very own Lords. The opening ceremonies started things off with an exciting dunk competition and 3 point shoot out. The traditional slide show and hilarious but unsuccessful dunk attempts by Gaylord created some hype in the crowd. A banquet followed that evening for all participating teams. Don Horwood, head coach of the U of A Golden Bears, was the guest speaker. He fascinated everyone with stories and experiences that had some good lessons about leadership, determination and commitment. After three days of grueling competition, Strathcona's senior women defeated all of their opponents and captured the gold. Scona's senior men placed second after being defeated in a close and intense final against Bert Church High School in Airdrie. The weekend was a big success as all teams went home with some great learning experiences and many memories from the friendships they made along the way.

THE MONTREAL ICE STORM

January 6, 1998 was the first of five days of freezing rain in the Montreal area. This five day disaster was literally "the storm of the century". Steel power pylons collapsed inwards from the weight of the ice and snow. The ice completely encased cars, hung off houses and snapped power lines. In some places there was up to two inches of ice hanging off and breaking thousands of trees. Millions of Quebecers were without electricity. About forty percent of the power grid on the south shore was destroyed and took a minimum of two weeks to be replaced. Some places used temporary lines and some had to be rebuilt completely. Thousands of people were forced to evacuate their homes and stay in shelters. This storm did not only effect Quebec, but it also had an effect on all of Canada. 1500 Edmonton troops alone were sent on ice storm relief work, along with an army truck kitchen, sent by rail. 2400 soldiers in the eleventh Canadian Mechanized Brigade Group from Edmonton and Manitoba were sent to south Montreal.

Army and police members from all over Canada were at the site of the storm patrolling the streets, feeding the people who were forced out of their homes, setting up emergency generators, clearing roads and providing medical care. The damage that was caused by the storm was estimated to take up to a year to repair. A storm of this size will stay with the survivors for the rest of their lives and it will stay in our memory for a long time to come.

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

Everyone knows that Scona has a very wide variety of talent, especially when it comes to music. This talent was once again shown off as some of Scona's greatest musicians put thier playing to a test. Scona's fourth annual Battle of the Bands took place in November, 1997. The competition consisted of almost every type of music from Jazz to Pop Rock to Heavy Metal to Folk.

Mr. McEachern, Mr. Wallace and Mr. Gerun were nominated to be the judges and were faced with many difficult decisions. In the end Scona Jazz Combo tied for third place along with Jungle Jane and the Hardbodies. Second place was given to The Insoucants, and first place was given no doubtably to Tokinsense. These and all of the other bands kept the audience cheering and left the judges with some very tough decisions to make.

This event attracted many fans who were devoted to school spirit and also generous in thier donations to the food bank. The bands kept the gym alive.

THE GREEN CUP

Well the 1997 Grey Cup has come and gone, with a resounding victory by the Toronto Argonauts. But despite this, game (on November 16) and the week preceding it were certainly deserving of the title of the "Green Cup", for all the support shown for the underdog, The Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Fans from all over the western provinces came by the bus loads to celebrate and cheer on the green Riders, pouring millions of dollars into the Edmonton economy while they were at it. At some times it just got scary seeing so much green, not to mention all the drunken farmers, but a good time was had by all.

When the big game finally came it was nothing short of a disappointment (like the Esks losing to the Riders wasn't bad enough). The Roughriders, who has a regular season losing record, were brutally defeated. This was in no way a surprise, as Toronto has so many great players.

The only thing more disappointing than watching Toronto win so easily, was knowing that Edmonton could have kicked their butt. Unfortunately, the Esks choked in the Western final, ending all hopes for the best possible Grey Cup ever.

VLT'S - THE CONTROVERSY

Six thousand Video Lottery Terminals have been installed in Alberta pubs and cocktail lounges, – generating nearly one billion dollars of extra revenue each year for the provincial government. Albertans have been told they have a fair and reasonable chance to win money playing these electronic slot machines; but five years of extensive research shows that VLT's are the biggest scam ever perpetrated by a government.

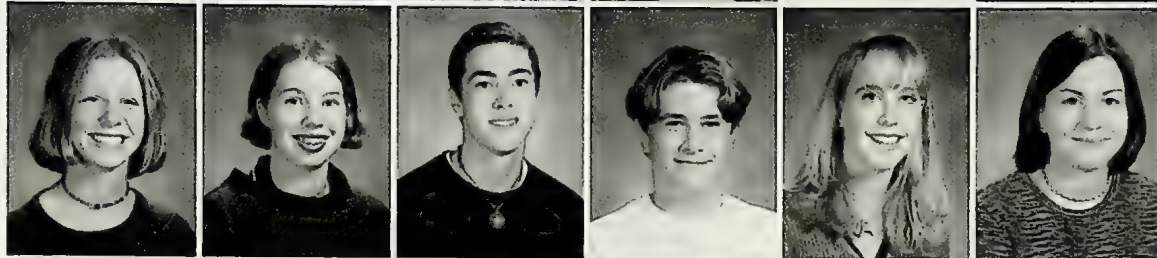

The Alberta Gaming Commission states, and advertises, a 92% payout from these machines; however they have declined to provide the actual odds of winning. It is apparent that the odds are so bad that they will not advertise or otherwise divulge them. Research indicates that the average "odds" are substantially less than the payout and cashout percentages promoted by the Alberta Gaming Commission.

Late in 1994 Alberta Lotteries implemented a "Firmware" programming change province-wide. As reported by the news media, this "chip swap" was supposed to increase the number of smaller pays, while maintaining the advertised payout, at the same level. The players know differently. It appears that the Alberta Gaming Commission entered into a second phase of cunning psychological manipulation, presuming that "addicted" players would continue to pour loonies into their machines. It is clear that the payout patterns change for all of the games including Fire Reel, Super Eight, Double Loon, Lightening Bars and the card games. A "win some, lose some" situation has become a "lose some, lose some more" scenario, causing many VLT player to quit playing the games all together because they just can't win.

UNITED FOR A BETTER WORLD

Scona's involvement in world issues have always been unique to our school. So, twice a year there are "delegates" from different countries that come together for a meeting of the United Nations to discuss and vote on issues that effect the world today. Each country, which ranged from Zaire to Canada, used their knowledge of their foreign policies, imports, exports and the current political situation to determine their position. The topics the countries debated ranged from environmental to population control. Each country searched for an ideal outcome that will benefit their country as well as help make a global impact that will improve mankind. The result is a day full of intense debate with each country presenting their opening and closing statements as well as taking advantage of question periode. It was a success for all who participated and in the end it made students more aware of what is going on in the world today and to feel lucky to live in Canada.

As the year 2000 approaches, we begin to wonder: What will the world be like in the next century? What does the future hold? As we ponder these questions, we realize something. In a few months we'll be leaving high school and entering the "real" world. For almost everyone this is a scary thought. As we embark on our newest adventure, we must remember one thing. Our family and friends will always support us. Good luck!

Marta Bogdanowicz

First I'd like to thank my mom and dad for standing by me through all these years and for supporting me in everything I did. I'd also like to give the Allendale gang two very enthusiastic thumbs up for making school more fun than it should have been (all right guys nobody out). To the M&M's + N., you guys are the best. And to everyone else, keep in touch.

This is a fond farewell to weekend plots, the bug-eyed boy, the ELF, my spaz attacks yelling 5-0 roll down the windows. Speeding around in the Jeep Song #4 announcing our arrival staying up forever dancing with raving blue Smurfs and remembering Jasper room 269. Three years have flown and I don't feel that old. The dance continues. Love and Pax To All.

1998 VALEDICTORIAN'S ADDRESS

Good evening honored guests, parents, teachers, and fellow graduates. We are honored to represent the Grad Class of 1998. When we began brainstorming for this speech we found ourselves faced with a problem we simply had too many ideas. It would be impossible to sum-up three years in three minutes for just one person, let alone all of the graduates. Yet while our years at Scona were different, many of our experiences were similar. These characterized by the races we ran, the points we scored, the victories we relished, the defeats we suffered, the tests we suffered, the pointless—er, um we mean, the informative essays we concocted, the articles we wrote, the field trips we experienced, the music we played, the theatrics we performed, and we don't just mean drama, the laughter we shared with the friends we made. For the chance to participate in so many extracurricular activities, we owe the teachers and support staff a great deal of thanks. Beyond their efforts in the classroom to present material to us in new and innovative ways, countless hours after school and on weekends were devoted to making our years in high school as interesting and exciting as possible. We will take much of this with us as we leave Scona to pursue all that lies beyond. And what does lie beyond? Um, we don't know...STUFF? Well, I guess what lies beyond is different for everyone of us. Some of us are entering the workplace, some leaving town to explore the world, and others are moving on to years more of education, for reasons we can't quite figure out. The world we are entering, which has been forming over the last few decades, is changing as quickly as the software on which it is run. And with the Internet forming ties around the globe, humanity has made connections like never before. It is this environment that has bred a generation insistent upon increased equality and social justice. As a group, one major goal to strive for is tolerance. Wars around the world are being fought over issues prevalent even here in Canada, but we choose to deal with conflict differently. We are fortunate to live in a society in which women and men across all cultures can excel in virtually any area they choose. As individuals, we must ensure this climate of tolerance is fostered in our everyday lives and relationships. Undoubtedly, this will serve the advancement of the community in which we live, and eventually spread beyond those borders. Similarly, perhaps the greatest contribution we can make to this society is service; our time, energy, loyalty, and caring to those around us—much in the same way we have served our school in the last three years. A stronger community results in a better living environment for everyone. In this way, the service an individual does for their community also benefits them in the end. Quite often, personal rewards and monetary rewards are seen as the most important goals for which individuals can strive. Unfortunately, such views overlook the work done by many individuals who act in the interests of their community. Still, there remain many people who are willing to serve such institutions as their community, family, or school, regardless of whether they gain recognition for their actions. Many great examples of this attitude exist in our society today. Volunteerism is alive and well, both in and out of our school. Scona's motto, "As one serves" illustrates this mentality. The incredible leadership and selflessness of those who freely give their time to help others will always be an asset to society, and those in it. Such service is also present in a family setting. Rarely are family members rewarded for giving up some of their own goals in order to aid another member with a problem. In addition, commitment is essential to success. If a person cannot commit to a purpose, they simply cannot succeed at it. If there is one thing we should take from our time at Scona it is this idea: a commitment to service and excellence in whatever we pursue. The graduates will leave Scona, with its pea-green tiled-halls to make our marks. In the words of Carl Sagan: "Poised at the edge of forever, we would jump off..." Congratulations to the grads of 1998 for making it this far. And the best of luck in the years to come.

—Lisa Lemieux and Peter Hrudey

Captain: Captain's log, Stardate 120598. We have been forced to seek out a new safety zone after the recent annihilation of our previous site on Planet Zamna. We have chosen a model high school on Earth as a possibility which will allow us to regain our planetary strength. Spock will be beamed down to conduct further investigations. The investigation will take approximately three years, but will seem almost instantaneous as we travel the Earth at the same speed as its rotation.

Spock: Captain, we are rapidly approaching Earth and must prepare for transport.

C: It is conceivable, Spock, that we will need to take over this school, that is unless you find any reason that it should be allowed to maintain its normal function.

S: Yes Captain.

C: Scottie, prepare the transporter for a single passenger.

C: Spock?

S: Yes, Captain?

C: Good luck.

S: Yes, Captain.

C: Ready to go, Scottie. Please beam Mr. Spock down.

S: Captain, I have successfully reached our target area. I seem to be standing outside of what appears to be a brick structure, an asymmetrical building, surrounded with individual land transport vehicles.

There is a twentieth century inscription, "Strathcona Composite High School, 1956." The site appears to be inhabitable. I will now proceed with further observations.

Tyler: Are you a new student too?

S: Um...yes.

T: Man. First day. I'm so nervous. It feels like there's a thousand people watching my every move. By the way, my name's Tyler. (look Spock over)...And you are?

S: Oh...Val.

T: So...are you going to the Welcome Week Dance on Friday?

Spock/Val: Sure.

T: Come on. We'll be late for class. (Start to walk together) One more thing. You probably don't want to step on that crest. I'm not sure what would happen, but I'll bet it isn't pretty!

S/V: Right...the crest.

T: I guess I'll see you Friday.

S/V: Yes. See you then.

T: This is so cool. The girls in high school are way better than junior high. I'm goin' in to check 'er out.

S/V: (whips open triquarter) Report to the Enterprise. Captain, I am now at some sort of social function called the Welcome Week Dance. It appears as though people are enjoying the proceedings. They appear to be engaged in a primitive set of customs. I will attempt to pick up some of their cultural steps.

T: Holy. I wish I could dance like that. I did sort of meet a girl though.

S/V: Really, what is her name?

T: Oh I didn't talk to her. But we had eye contact. Oh yeah, I had her in my tractor beam, if you know what I mean.

S/V: Tractor beam?.....Captain, I will now give you a brief overview of the past year's events. I have recently adjusted to this school's format and was able to find time, between my studies, to attend such major events as the 25th consecutive city track and field championship, the 10th consecutive swimming championship, and numerous other events. But Captain, the site seems better than we thought. The walls and the corridors are covered in a light green tile that should act as an efficient intergalactic radiation shield. Just like the one we faced recently in our Vulcan battle. So everything still seems in order for our eventual take-over.

T: Grade 11 is totally so much cooler than grade 10.

S/V: Yes. Cooler.

T: You're one weird chick, Val. Whoa!! You almost stepped on the crest!

S/V: (dodging) Apologies, Earth Friend, I almost forgot. (aside...I wonder what the penalty is for violating the crest?)

T: Forgot! Not me, man! I haven't forgotten a thing! I am so pumped for this year. Hey...what did you call me?

S/V: Uh...nothing.....isn't it time for the Pep Rally?...Dude.

T: Wow. Scona's got so much school spirit. Look at all these teams...Val! Look, there she is again. One day I'm going to talk to her.

S/V: You have not had any verbal contact as of yet?

T: No...but we've had some serious chemistry.

S/V: (into triquarter) Report to the Enterprise. Grade 11 went by so fast, Captain. It was virtually a blur. On the whole it seemed extraneous. This assignment may, however, be quite hazardous. I seem to be fitting in quite well here at Scona with these primitive humans...I almost feel myself becoming human...I feel myself becoming illogical, similar to many of the students. T: (crutches on) I don't know how much I'm liking grade 12. I'm so stressed out about diplomas and it seems like everyone is dying this year.

S/V: Yes we did say goodbye to princess Diana and actor Chris Farley.

T: And Sonny Bono. I know you had trouble with that one. I had better be out of this cast by grad...oh, geez. Her locker is so close to ours this year. That's it! Carpe Diem! I'm asking her right now. (crutches off)

S/V: Report to the Enterprise. Captain, unfortunately I do not appear to have a date to the graduation festivities, but I will still attend for research purposes.

T: Val, will you go to Grad with me?

S/V: (aside into triquarter) Captain, I think I am in love.

T: Um...Val, Star Trek rocks and everything, but don't wear that thing to grad, OK?

S/V: Star Trek?..... Captain, I am making my final report here at Strathcona. I can now fully understand what each of these students feel as they walk through these halls. By being part of their incredible academic and scholastic achievements for the last three years I can now feel the pride the students feel towards this institution. The tradition and excellence reminds me of my own culture, and therefore I can not allow the take-over to proceed as planned. I do wish for all these Scona students to live long and prosper. I will now return to my post aboard the Enterprise. Beam me up, Scottie.

SOLSTICE

She can see the light from here
As she walks her trail of thoughts
Fumbling in her darkest dreams
Searching for the one thing lost

Saved by light and out of fire
Come the shadow emerging undone
Captured in their glorious daze
Together they wander amidst the dawn

Floating, deceived in gentle restriction
he won't be left alone
Somewhere, Somehow
She'll thread another path and tangle with the sun

Amidst the dawn they travelled among
What seemed to be a mirror of songs
Hands and words reflected above
United in spirit yet broken in one

She sweetly surrenders, rendering her soul
As far as the sky can go
Turning back and looking around
Enduring what she left behind

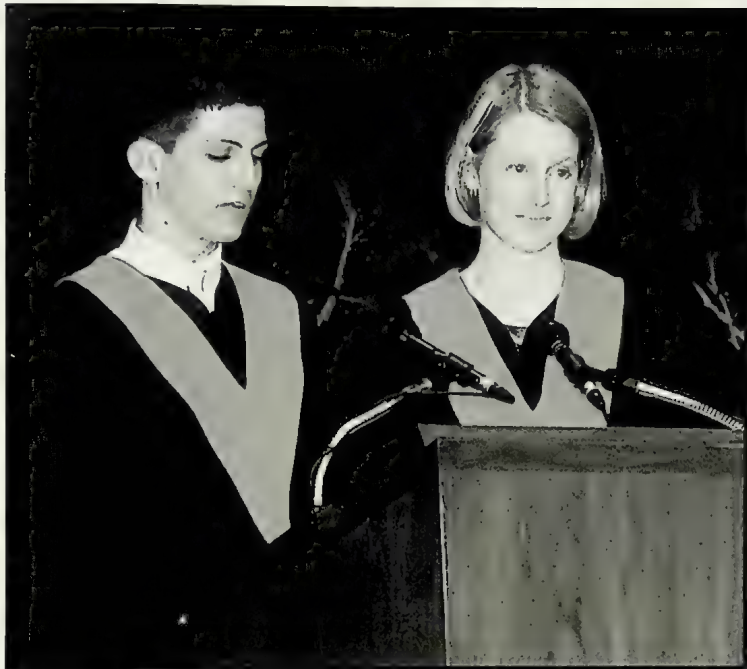

She has seen the sun from here
Leaving her trail of thoughts behind
Striding out of her darkest dreams
Finding the one thing that she had lost

In Truth, in spirit eternally emerged
Through the knowledge acquiring the words
Amidst the shadow which casted the doubt
That paved the path to her new found self

Written and performed by Donna Tolentino and Jill Legaarden

MAKE YOUR MARK!

Surrounded by a sea of red V-stoles and black robes, one can't help but realize that we are graduating. It's kind of ironic that in a school known for individuality, we all leave to Make our Marks on the world dressed the same. The exquisite singing of Jill Legaarden and Donna Tolentino to a composition by Darren Fung embodied the mood and feeling of us all as we set off "like an eagle first leaving its nest." The inspirational word of Brian Frier told us to have fun, that we have the power and the ability, and that all we need is the will to succeed and make our mark. Excellent interludes by Scona's Jazz Combo, Maria Holub's singing and Arora Copper, impressed us all, including the jumping and dancing abilities of Marianne Guilbert and Tara-Lee Stilwell. The speeches, the pictures, the smiles and the laughs were excellent reminders to accompany the climax of our high school years. Happily, we managed to walk across the stage and receive our certificates without tripping. Next...the world!

This group of Scona studs are all very glad to be graduating.

Joelle Fawcett proudly crosses the stage as she receives her well deserved diploma.

Jayda Maclean proudly accepts her diploma from Mr. Anderson.

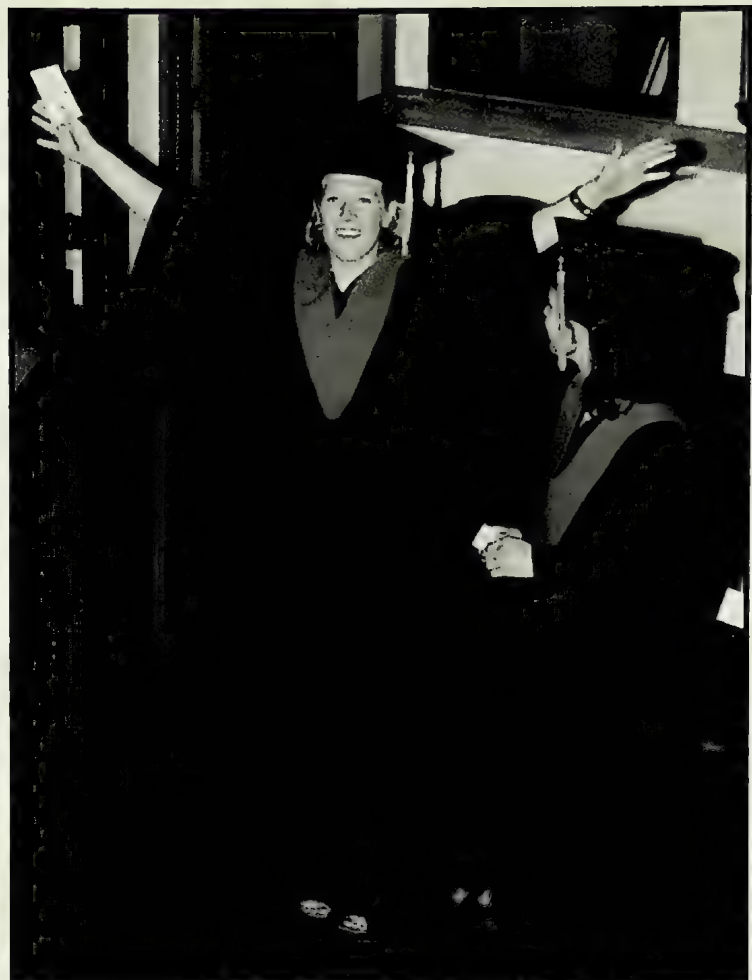

Katie Hagg sings a beautiful rendition of O' Canada to her fellow graduates.

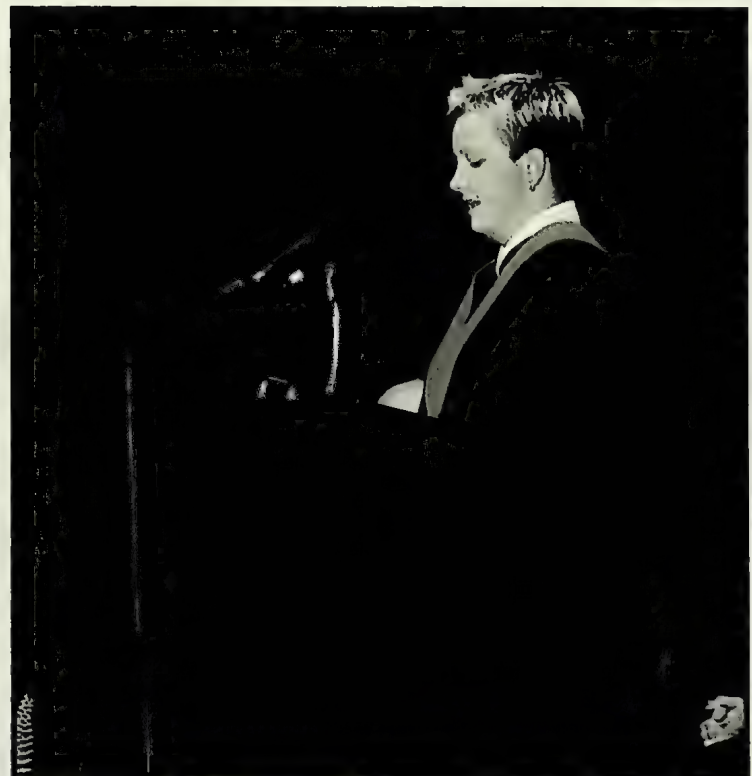

A sea of graduates... as they show the world that they finally made it.

Amanda Stepenko does a victory stance.

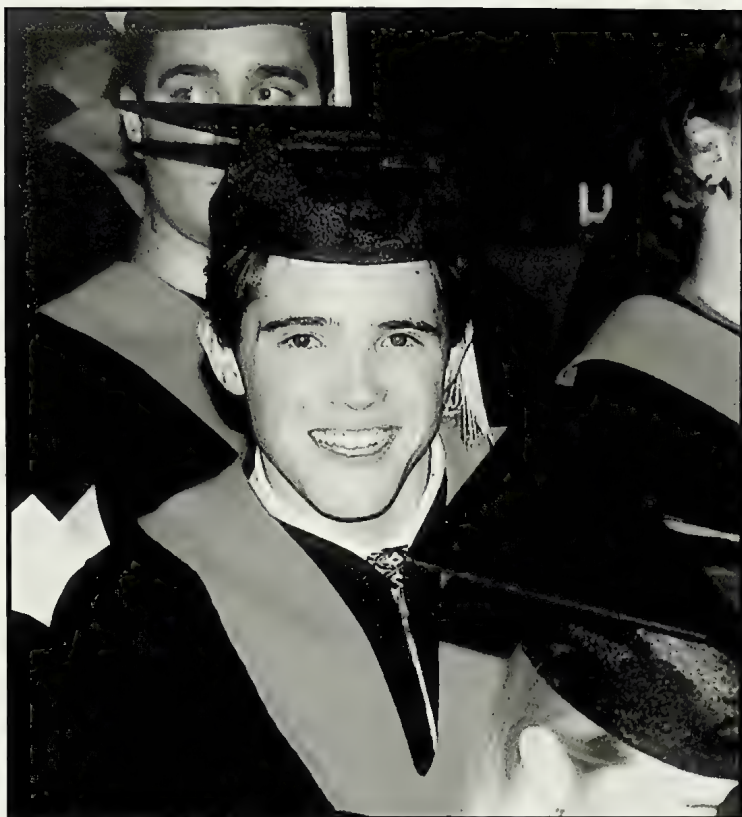

Danielle Merchant is all smiles as she waits her turn to cross the stage.

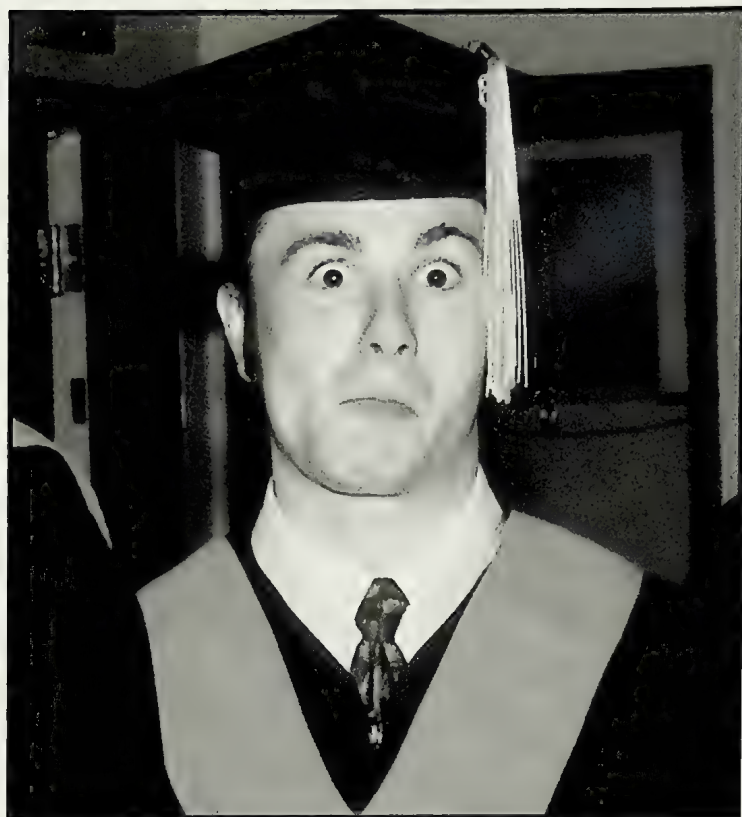

Kerry Maguire presents the grad present of a painting to the school.

Will Milroy is very happy to be graduating

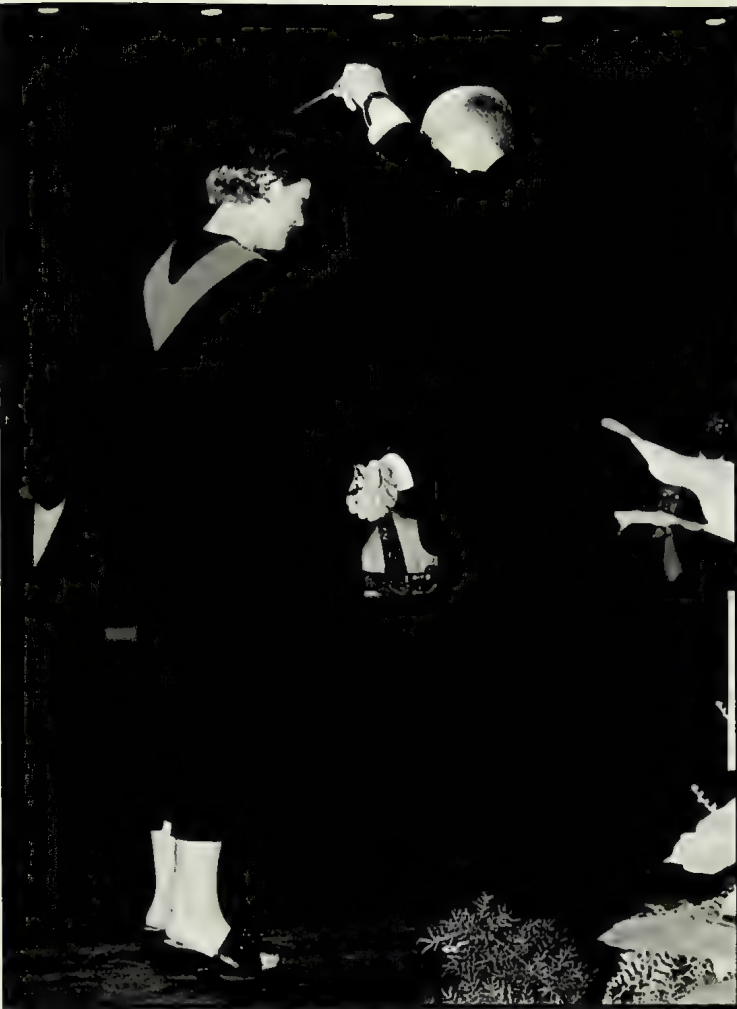

Sean Hillaby can't believe that he's actually graduating, it all happened so fast

Brett Fleming, the guest speaker gives a great motivational speech about setting and attaining our goals.

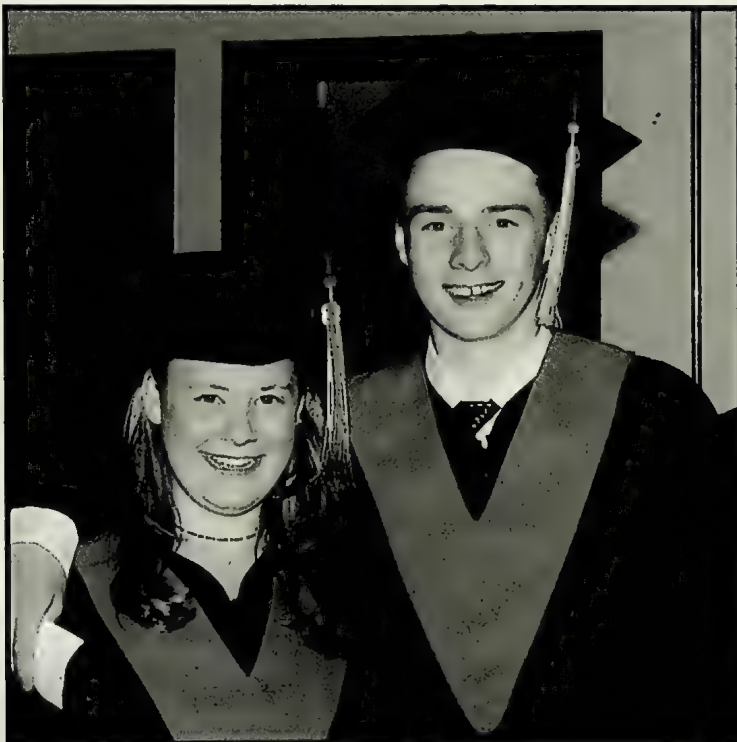

Mark Davies, a proud graduate.

Marcel Eden is very proud to have received his diploma.

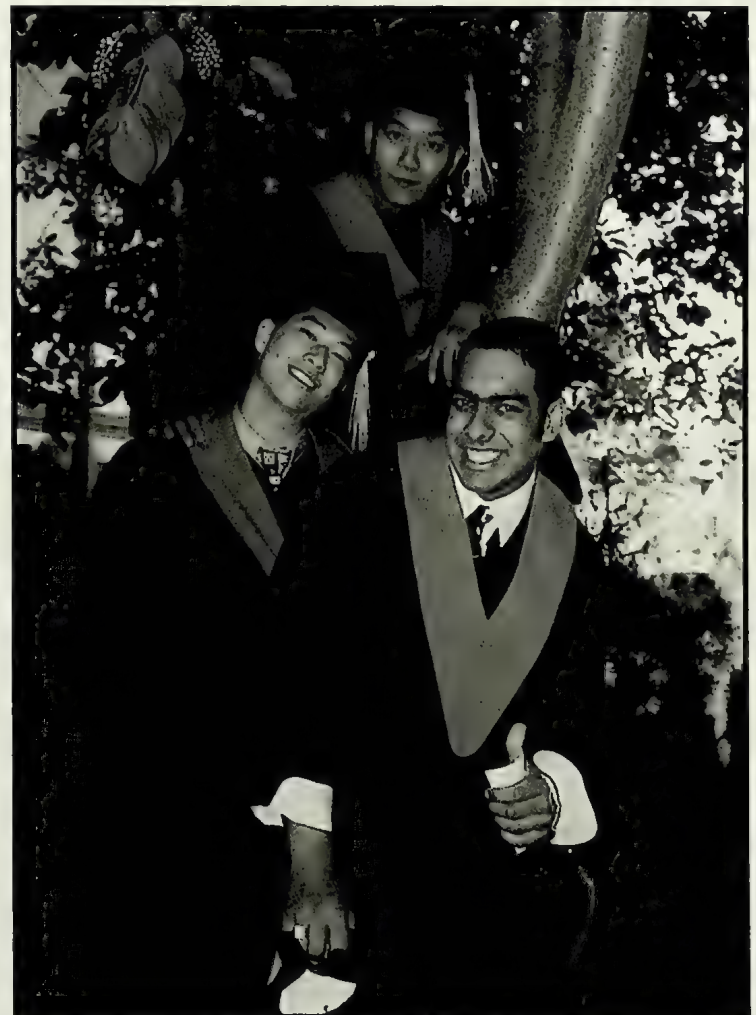

Fiona Halbert gets her tassel moved by Mr. Anderson as she proudly crosses the stage.

Don Tomko, Steve Ruggiero and Jay Spadafora make up part of Scona's very talented Jazz Combo.

Faye Pagon and James Parker stand patiently backstage as they await their turn to cross the stage.

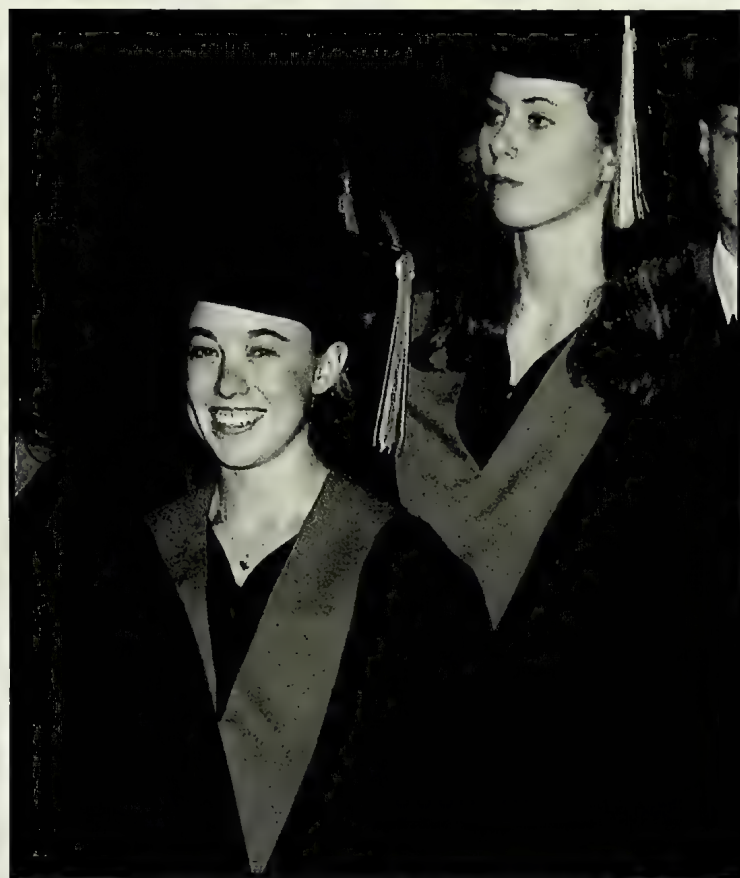

Wilson Kwan, Jason Quong and Vikas Khullar pose by a tree after receiving their diplomas.

Val Walker and Tyler Waye use the Star Trek theme for their historian address to the 1998 grad class.

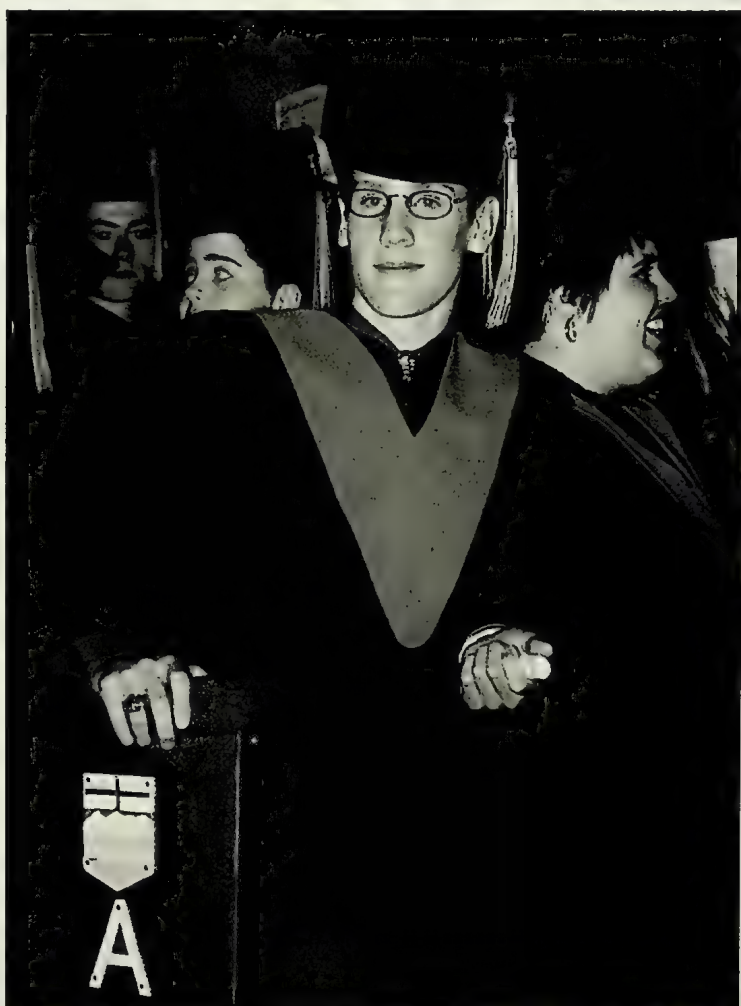

Peter Hrudey and Lisa Lemieux are the 1998 valedictorians.

Graham Aberg looks into the avenues of tomorrow.

Colin Rudko and Escort looking their finest for grad.

It's over!! Natalia Nierradka and Monique Ganderton celebrate.

The Truth Will Set You Free

Star shaped balloons filled the Shaw Conference Centre as flashes from hundreds of cameras and laughter from surrounding graduates filled the banquet hall. Not only were the decorations amazing but the elegant gowns and classy suits and tuxes made the evening one to remember. From very simple outfits to eighteenth century threads, the grads all looked amazing. The Graduation Banquet was a night to remember. Before the dinner, the grads were outside, admiring each other's outfits and getting pictures taken over looking the beautiful river valley. The Graduation Banquet was a night to remember. The evening started with a wonderful meal on brightly decorated tables that shouted our school's spirit. The evening brought forth eloquent and thoughtful toasts and replies from parents, teachers, and students. We tipped our glasses in joy to the many people who supported us in our long journey. We were also graced with a speech from one of our most inspirational teachers Ms. Love-Pankonin. Darren Fung awed us with his musical talents which ended with a standing ovation. To end the night, students were entertained with a look back at the graduating class of 1998 with a slide show of embarrassing pictures. After all the excitement, the grads kicked off their shoes and danced the night away with escorts and parents. Though for most of them the night had just begun.

Mr. Farrar and Mr. Klaus ham it up during the banquet.

Friends forever, Heather McDonald and Mark Davies hanging out at grad.

Darren Fung entertains his audience with a beautiful piano recital.

Andrea Lown is all decked out for the big night.

Augustus Archampong and his escort take time to relax during grad.

Do a little dance...Will Milroy cuts the rug during grad.

Nicole O'Conner, Heather McDonald and Crystal Verenka having lots of fun.

Don Roberts and Alicia Bourque are shy at the thought of getting their picture taken.

So happy together—a group of Scona gals show off their dresses and smiles.

Barry Levoir and Elizabeth Stevenson are a styling pair.

Ahhh!! We're graduating!! Kerry McGuire and Phoebe Krudys reminisce about the good times.

Kris Baker and Tyler Waye share a Kodak moment.

Vanessa Vandegriff gives Donna Tolentino a graduation twist.

A great time with old friends.

Scona's leading ladies show a little leg.

Herman Chau busting a move.

Marianne Guilbert and Chris Henderson share some smiles during grad.

Ms. von Stackelberg replies to the toast thanking the teachers.

Shaheen Nasser looks forward to a new beginning.
